

The age of IT planning and budgeting by spreadsheets and Word documents is over.

Northramp's Federal Planning and Architecture Support System (FEDPASS™) helps organizations connect planning, budgeting, investment management, and architecture disciplines within an integrated solution that drives incredible visibility and control over an organization's IT service and system portfolio.

- Put IT planning to real use - drive activities instead of producing glossy documents
- Take control of IT investment management and use it to achieve true visibility instead of generating reporting for OMB
- Connect budgeting to planning to drive practical and transparent prioritization
- Identify real opportunities to drive standardization and consolidation by understanding where technologies are planned and deployed

IT Strategic Planning

Establish and track goals and strategies, including related details such as organizational ownership and progress towards achievement, and connect them to the organization's activities to drive true impact from strategic planning efforts.

IT Investment Management

Define investments and segments and connect them to the organization's systems and services to build a complete unified model of the organization's investments inclusive of its current and planned operations and projects.

Enterprise Architecture

Develop and track technologies and standards and align them to systems, services, and investments as well as operational and project related activities to identify opportunities for standardization and develop real transition plans that are accurate and inclusive.

Extensible Platform

FedPass™ maintains a flexible model that enables true insight and control while conforming to an organization's specific needs. The data model is customizable and supports direct integration with other IT management tools.

Many organizations still rely solely on productivity tools, clunky systems designed only to support external reporting, and data call after data call to collect and report IT activities.

With FedPass™, organizations can say goodbye to painfully captured one-off snapshots and instead use a sustainable approach to managing IT planning, budgeting, and investment management:

- ▶ Track and connect system, service, investment, project, and other information in an easy-to-use interface
- ▶ Run built-in or develop ad-hoc reports across more than 25 different segmenting dimensions
- ▶ Leverage built-in value and budget prioritization models to facilitate planning, decision-making, and performance monitoring
- ▶ Export or integrate with other IT or government-wide systems
- ▶ Link systems, services, and operational and project activities to establish dependencies for use in planning, budgeting, and change management
- ▶ Identify and align technologies and standards to systems and projects to automatically generate current and future state targets and roadmaps

We believe that each individual and every IT organization is naturally hard wired to excel, deliver, and make a difference. This focus and commitment is in effect their 'true north'.

At Northramp, our passion, our true north, is to help our clients cut through the fog and obtain clarity to help them make the most significant impact possible. We help you figure out where you really stand, and rapidly operationalize improvements in a way that is sensitive to your environment, sustainable, and gets you back on track.

Focused like a laser on driving value for our clients, Northramp specializes in helping public and private sector clients streamline their operations, improve their services, and drive greater returns from investments. We believe that what our competitors strive for - effective program and project management, risk reduction, and compliance for example - are not a pinnacle but the foundation for providing effective support and adding value.

While others rely heavily on resources that solely possess 'consulting' experience implementing canned methodologies, Northramp leverages resources with direct hands-on experience who work collaboratively with clients. We structure our support and provide resources that focus on producing results, not paper.

For more Information, visit www.northramp.com/fedpass