

September 2010 Post-Finance Training Report

Key Takeaways

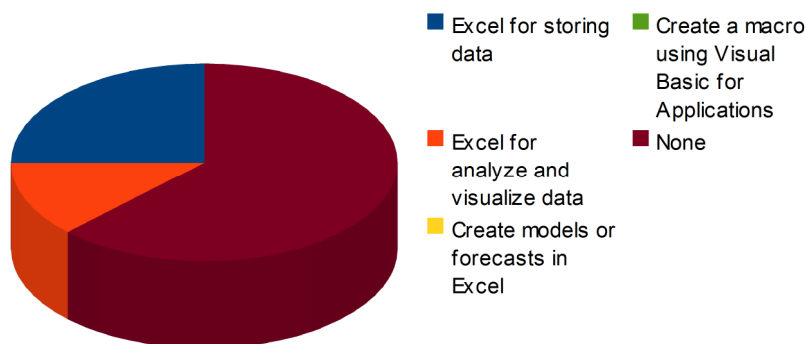

There is room for extensive cooperation on training with Daesong Bank, the State Development Bank, and other financial institutions as our lecturers feedback and survey results from the training session at Kim Il Sung University e-library (12 participants) indicate that skill sets for finance (e.g. modeling with excel) is severely lacking and awareness of global financial institutions and models is low.

We recommend more intensive training sessions in-country with a focus on building skill-sets in investment selection, accounting, macro-economics, financial modeling with computers and legal training. This should be complemented with further training abroad that emphasizes building networks and visits to key financial institutions to learn from them. Choson Exchange is willing to support such training if there is an interest and willingness by partners to bear some of the costs of such training.

Excel (or similar software) is hardly used in making investment/financial decisions. When used, its full potential is not realized as it is used at a simple level. International training is also limited.
