Parshat Behar, speaks about Shmita in Eretz Yisrael. Shmita, which occurs every seven years, is a year in which we do not harvest the land. Shmita makes us acknowledge that the earth, our land, our possessions, and our money all belong to Hashem.

Here are some samples of number seven in action:

We all know that Hashem created the "Shamayim" (Heaven) and the "Eretz" (Earth). But did you know that Shamayim and Eretz both have seven names?

There are seven generations from Avrohom to Moshe: Avrohom, Yitzchok, Yaakov, Levi, K'hat, Amram and Moshe. Of all seven, Moshe was most worthy to receive the Torah.

Yishai had seven sons, but only the seventh was worthy of becoming King of the Jewish people. King David is referred to in Divrei HaYamim as "Dovid...the seventh."

Seven comes up many more times in the Torah.

- Seven lambs were used in the oath between Avrohom (Abraham) and Avimelech at Be'er Sheva.

- Pharaoh's dreams were full of sevens. There were seven fat cows and seven skinny cows, seven fat stalks and seven skinny stalks.

- Yitro, Moshe's father-in-law, had seven names - Yitro, Yeter, Chovav, Chaver, Re'uel, Putiel, and Kaini.

- Seven times seven years is Yovel.

- Pesach / Passover in Eretz Yisroel lasts seven days; and there are seven weeks between Pesach and Shavuot.

- Sukkot in Eretz Yisroel is seven days.

- Yehoshua circled the walls of Yericho seven times.

I'll bet if you think about it, you can come up with at least another two examples of "sevens" in the Torah. I'll give you a hint: Bilaam, and Yetziat Mitzrayim.

And that's the story behind seven!
