REFRESHMENTS

BOTTLE SERVICE
Chill out with a retro cooler stocked with stylish sippers that can move from cocktail hour to reception in a hot second.

FREEZE AGENT This old-school metal cooler is rather—how shall we put it?—cool ($140, backyardcity.com). Sure, it displays bevvies on ice (and will be handy for future backyard shindigs), but best of all, it's a quick way to get drinks in guests' hands after the ceremony. Then, have your caterer roll it over to your party location. Illustrator Jen Mussari made this "Stay Cool!" sign (from $75, jenmussari.com), but you can take any design, monogram, or photo you like and upload it at a FedEx Office, where they'll print it onto a superthin magnet ($24/sq ft, fedexoffice.com).

LOVELY LIBATIONS Offer up to three options, keeping in mind that it's wise to go nonalcoholic before the ceremony, then serve booze after. 1. Cedrata Tassoni, an Italian lime soda ($2.40, eataly.com). 2. San Pellegrino Aranciata sparkling orange drink ($6.25 for 6, ditalia.com). 3. Strawberry-hued Nicolas Feuillatte rosé Champagne ($16, winetrain.com). 4. Pampelonne red sangria and sparkling rosé (from $16 for 4, enjoypampelonne.com). 5. Fizzy Country Club orange soda ($2, shop.com).
